Corporate Health Management – in accordance

What factors will be critical for future economic development?

Machines? Robots? Artificial intelligence?
The answer to this question is far more human. It is: Health. That is: health defined as a state of complete physical and mental well-being and performance.

With over 400 physicians, psychologists and occupational health and safety experts, TÜV SÜD Life Service offers support and assistance in the fields of occupational medicine, occupational psychology and occupational safety. The interaction of these three modules creates what we define as effective Corporate Health Management.

Corporate Health Management in accordance with the standard of TÜV SÜD Life Service is a management system that spans all functional units of a company and can be integrated into existing management systems. It connects five spheres of activity into an integrated model in which all individual measures are aligned with each other.

Five spheres of activity – one integrated system:

- Occupational Health and Safety
- Health Promotion Programmes at Work
- Company Management
- HR Management
- Internal Communication

Corporate Health Management in line with the standard of TÜV SÜD Life Service integrates and coordinates existing activities in the company and thus requires only limited investments.

The Corporate Health Management system established by TÜV SÜD aims at maintaining or improving the health of your workforce with the help of a variety of services.

The mental health of your workforce also plays a significant role in this context.

The focus of our Corporate Health Management system

Given this, our Corporate Health Management services in occupational psychology, occupational medicine and occupational safety focus on the following spheres:

- Occupational Health and Safety
- Health Promotion Programmes at Work

Arguments for Integrated Health Management

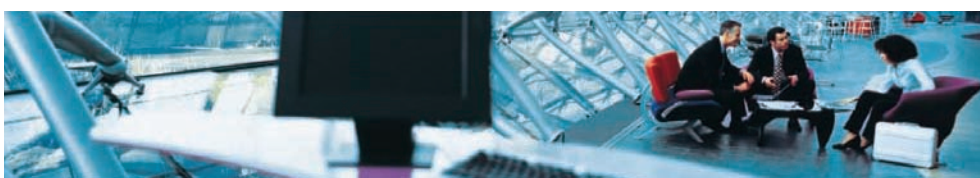

- Systematic reduction in the sickness absence rate
- Improvement of mental and physical performance
- Reduction in accident risk
- Cost savings
- Enhanced work-life balance
- Continuous improvement of working conditions
- Enhanced job satisfaction
- Higher attractiveness of the company for both clients and employees
- Enhanced competitiveness

Health as a critical success factor: We help you to manage this issue.

Workforces are ageing, the part-time retirement scheme is being phased out and the pensionable age is increasing. Skilled staff are becoming a more valuable resource than ever before. From an economic perspective in particular, health is a critical success factor.

We will be happy to advise you on the various strategies for establishing an efficient health management system tailored to your needs: Within an organization, health management can be implemented either via the occupational health and safety committee, a health task force or a health circle.

We work with you to discuss and define the targets, objectives and individual measures and assist you in their professional implementation.
